

JOHN McILWAINE RIP

The Independent Commission for the Location of Victims' Remains (ICLVR) wishes to express its regret on the untimely death of John McIlwaine and to convey its deepest sympathy to his family.

John worked in the Department of Archaeological Sciences at the University of Bradford and was a consultant to the ICLVR since 2006. He led the teams of archaeologists that recovered the remains of Danny McIlhone in 2008 and Charlie Armstrong in 2010. John was a tower of strength to the ICLVR and his great knowledge, experience and dedication made a huge contribution to our work.

His untimely death is a great loss to the ICLVR and will be keenly felt also by his friends, colleagues and the families of the Disappeared. It is, however, an even greater loss to his wife and family to whom we extend our heartfelt condolences.

May he rest in peace.
